

The Shay Culver City

8801 West Washington Blvd

The Shay Culver City is not only centrally located between West Hollywood, Santa Monica, and DTLA, but the property also sits on the Expo line connected Downtown to Westside making it easy to get around town.

With that in mind, here are some cool spots to check out when staying at The Shay:

Mandrake

2692 S La Cienega Blvd

If you're looking to bar-hop around Culver City, the Mandrake won't fall on your radar: it's tucked away from its competitors. However, it's convenient for the emerging local arts district, and even has its own gallery space. The bar itself is a mellow locals' hangout, with unpretentious service and reasonably priced drinks. The fake-tree-stump patio seating provides a fine setting for smoking and conversation.

Roosterfish

1302 Abbot Kinney Blvd

Fans wept when Roosterfish closed in 2016. As the Westside's oldest gay bar, the neighborhood felt Roosterfish's absence until new owners Mario Vollera and Patrick Brunet brought it back from the dead. It's no longer a dive, and they've had to increase prices to stay competitive, but it still has the same charm

Revolver

8851 Santa Monica Blvd

Revolver's first arrived in Boystown in 1984, but East West Lounge replaced it in 2006. The video bar reopened in 2012 and reestablished itself as one of LA's most iconic with drag competitions and celebratory screenings of Rupaul's Drag Race. Check the website for themed nights

Micky's

8857 Santa Monica Blvd

Micky's West Hollywood is open till 2am Monday through Thursday and Sunday and we are open till 4am on Friday and Saturday. Cover charge varies depending on the night.

Hopping, 2-story gay nightclub with a lounge, dance floor & patio. Open late Friday & Saturday.

The Abbey

West Hollywood

Perhaps the most iconic bar in the city — not to mention the definitive WeHo bar — everyone knows the world-famous Abbey. It's a hybrid restaurant and bar that serves LGBTQIA+, and is undoubtedly the most welcoming LA gay bar.
